Stop-the-Hate Message Shared with Tens of Thousands at California's Largest Black-Themed Street Festival

By Tanu Henry | California Black Media

Hundreds of thousands gathered at the 19th annual Taste of Soul Festival in Crenshaw -- an event dubbed "California's largest block party" -- on Oct. 19.

At the event, California Black Media (CBM) partnered with the California Civil Rights Department (CRD) to spread the word about the California Vs. Hate, a statewide hate crime online resource and telephone hotline, launched in 2023. The system enables Californians to easily report hate crimes and hate incidents.

"Held in the heart of south Los Angeles on Crenshaw Blvd, over half a million people attend the one-day event that brings out the best our community has to offer," said Brandon Brooks, Stop the Hate project director at California Black Media.

"The festival promotes local businesses as well as it brings out local and statewide resources to assist community members, Brooks continued. "The day has proven to be a great opportunity to speak to people directly and provide information to combat hate crimes and incidents."

During the event, Brooks said he, James Williams, Community Based Organization Manager for California Vs. Hate and Leah Brown-Goodloe from CBM informed and shared literature with tens of thousands of festivalgoers about the state's Stop the Hate resources.

A Statewide Preview: Black Candidates on Your November 5 Gen Election Ballot

By Joe Bowers | California Black Media

As the November 5, 2024, General Election approaches, a number of Black candidates are running for positions in the United States Congress, the State Senate, and the State Assembly. If elected, they would collectively represent a larger proportion of elected officials at the state level than California's Black population of about 6.5%.

Of the state's 52 U.S. House of Representatives seats, three are currently held by Black representatives. In the State Senate, which comprises 40 seats and elects half of its members every two years, there are currently two Black Senators. In the Assembly, which has 80 seats up for election every two years, 10 Black Assembly members currently serve.

In this election, five Black candidates are running for Congress, four for State Senate, and 13 for Assembly.

Below are the Black candidates (in bold letters) running for Congress and the State Legislature:

Congressional Races

In Congressional District 9 (Stockton), Kevin Lincoln (R), Mayor of Stockton, is challenging incumbent Josh Harder (D). Lincoln, a former Marine, is running on a platform focused on economic development, public safety, and government accountability. Harder, meanwhile, has focused on issues like healthcare access and immigration reform.

In Congressional District 12 (Oakland), Lateefah Simon (D), a nonprofit foundation president and civil rights advocate, is running to succeed Rep. Barbara Lee. Simon's platform emphasizes civil rights, affordable housing, and economic reform. Her opponent, Jennifer Tran (D), a professor and chamber president, is focused on economic development, public safety and leveraging technology for government transparency.

Coming of Christ.

For Thus Saith the Lord, My Spirit will not always strive with man. I will turn you into darkness, and I will never shine My light upon your path again. I am reaching out daily to you, seeking to draw you into My arms and to breathe upon you My love, grace and strength, but your mind is occupied with other things. You don't have the desire to draw nigh nor to hear what I am saying to you, because the devil has your attention, that you can't even hear me. I call and call, but there is no answer – and then when you do answer, you are so drowsy you don't know what the Spirit is saying. I tell you; one day, My Spirit will just say, sleep on. But now My Spirit cries to you, “Awake! Awake!” while there is yet still time!

Do you think judgment will never fall? If you do, then this I say therefore, and affirm together with the Lord, that you walk no longer in the futility of your mind, being darkened in your understanding excluded from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in you because of the hardness of your heart [Ephesians 4:17-21]. Judgment is as sure as Death and the Rapture. Read the Book of Revelation, God's Book of Judgment, and find out for yourself what's in store for those who are not ready for the Second

Sacramento Kings and Black-Owned Digital License Plate Firm Enter History-Making Partnership

By Antonio Ray Harvey | California Black Media

Reviver, the world's first digital license plate and connected vehicle platform, has entered into a history-making jersey patch partnership with the Sacramento Kings, team officials announced right before the team's season opener on Oct. 24. The collaboration establishes Reviver as the first Black-founded technology jersey patch partner in the National Basketball Association (NBA). The Reviver logo now appears on the left front strap of Kings' uniforms. Reviver founder and Chief Strategy Officer Neville Boston was in attendance to see the company's patch worn by the Kings, during a game with the Minnesota Timberwolves at Golden 1 Center in downtown Sacramento. "It was an absolutely amazing night. More than I ever expected," Boston told California Black Media (CBM). "The Sacramento Kings have been incredible. On a national, and maybe a worldwide level, this partnership raises the profile of Reviver with the assistance of (Kings chairman and CEO) Vivek Ranadivé and the Kings."

California's "African Jesus": Pío Pico, The First Black Governor and His Rise and Fall as a Landowner and Political Powerhouse

By Angela M. Coggs

Pío de Jesús Pico, known by some as California's "African Jesus," was one of the most powerful and influential figures in the early history of California. Born into a racially diverse family in 1801, Pico rose to prominence as the last Mexican governor of California before the territory was annexed by the United States. As a man of African, Native American, and European descent,

Pico defied racial boundaries to become one of the wealthiest landowners in the region. However, by the time of his death, Pico had lost near-

NAACP California-Hawaii State Convention Highlights Black Voter Engagement, and More

By Bo Tefu and Joe W. Bowers Jr. | California Black Media

The 37th NAACP California-Hawaii State Convention concluded on Sunday, Oct 27 following four days of discussions and workshops at the Los Angeles Airport Marriott. Bringing together civil rights leaders, policymakers, and advocates from California and Hawaii, the convention operated under the theme "All In." The participants discussed critical issues impacting Black communities, including criminal justice reform, health equity, economic empowerment, education, environmental justice, and voting rights. A Friday panel featuring NAACP Chairman Leon W. Russell and Regina Wilson, Executive Director of California Black Media, examined Project 2025, an initiative perceived as a potential threat to civil rights, healthcare access, and environmental protections. This session emphasized Project 2025's projected impact on Black communities, noting that policies within the initiative could diminish gains made in civil and environmental rights over decades. Russell and Wilson highlighted the need for vigilant monitoring and community mobilization to address these challenges.

On Saturday the President's Fireside Chat brought together NAACP President Derrick Johnson and CA/HI State Conference President Rick Callender, who discussed the urgency of

ly everything. His story is one of both immense influence and tragic loss, reflecting California's transition from Mexican to American rule and the shifting racial dynamics that came with it.

Early Life and Racial Heritage

Pío Pico was born on May 5, 1801, at the San Gabriel Mission near Los Angeles, in what was then Spanish-controlled Alta California. He was the son of José María Pico, a man of Spanish, African, and Native American heritage, and María Eustaquia Gutiérrez, who also had mixed racial ancestry. This background placed Pico among the racially diverse Californios, the settlers of Mexican and mixed heritage who played a crucial role in California's history. Pico's African ancestry made him a unique figure in early California, and he would later be recognized as the first governor of African descent in the territory's history.

During Pico's lifetime, California's social and racial structures were relatively fluid, particularly under Spanish and Mexican rule. Although racial hierarchy existed, it was not as rigidly enforced as it would become under American control. People of mixed race, including those with African or indigenous ancestry, could achieve positions of wealth and influence if they were able to navigate the social and political networks of the time. Pico did this with great skill, leveraging his family's landholdings and connections to rise to power. Political Ascendancy in Mexican California

Biden Appoints Black San Diego Attorney to California District Court Judgeship

On October 23, President Joe Biden nominated two judges to vacant federal judgeships in Southern California: Judge Serena Murillo and Judge Benjamin Cheeks.

Both appointments are subject to U.S. Senate confirmation next month.

If confirmed, Cheeks, who is African American and a criminal defense attorney, will replace U.S. District Judge Gonzalo P. Curiel. Before his appointment, Cheeks was in private practice at the Law Offices of Benjamin J. Cheeks, A.P.C. in San Diego from 2013 to 2024. From 2010 to 2013, Cheeks served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of California.

The same day of the White House announcement, California's U.S. Senators Alex Padilla and Laphonza Butler, both Democrats, and members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, congratulated Murillo and Cheeks and commended Biden on his decision.

"I applaud President Biden for his continued commitment to nominating highly qualified, diverse judges to serve California," said Padilla in a statement.

"Judge Cheeks has earned immense respect from his colleagues in the Southern District and has fought to protect vulnerable immigrants against fraud," Padilla added.

Butler said, "Californians deserve a federal bench that reflects the diversity of the Golden State.

"I applaud the President's nomination of Judge Serena Murillo and Judge Ben Cheeks to the United States District Courts for the Central District and Southern District of California, respectively. These two incredibly qualified candidates bring a breadth of both judicial and lived experience to the federal bench, and I look forward to supporting their paths to confirmation," she continued.

Murillo, who has been a judge on the Los Angeles Superior Court since 2015. She also served by appointment of the Chief Justice of the California Supreme Court as an Associate Justice pro tem on the California Court of Appeal from 2018 to 2019. Prior to joining the bench, Judge Murillo served as a Deputy District Attorney in the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office from 1997 to 2014. She received her J.D. from Loyola Law School in 1996 and her B.A. from the University of California, San Diego in 1993.

Cheeks earned his J.D. from the American University, Washington College of Law in 2003 and his B.A. from the University of Miami in Florida in 2000.

Prop 2 Seeks to Modernize Facilities

ments in schools, as well as modernizing science labs, performing arts spaces and kindergarten classrooms. School districts in lower-income areas have no other way to pay for these improvements.

According to the Public Policy Institute of California, 38% of students attend schools that don't meet the state's minimum safety standards. The research shows that schools with sub-standard facilities tend to have students with lower attendance rates, lower morale and lower overall academic performance.

California Black Media

spoke with a Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD) spokesperson on why she believes it should be a YES vote on Prop 2.

"Los Angeles Unified has $80 billion in identified unfunded school facility needs and over 60% of its school buildings are over 50 years old. If Proposition 2 is approved by voters, LAUSD anticipates applying for and receiving between $600 million and $700 million," the Spokesperson said. "Measure US, Los Angeles Unified's Local Public Schools Safety and Upgrades Measure on the November ballot would provide $9 billion to upgrade Los Angeles public schools for safety and 21st century student learning and college and career preparedness. The average annual cost to property owners is estimated at 2.5 cents per $100 of assessed (not market) property value. The Los Angeles Unified Board of Education adopted a Resolution on October 22 to support Los Angeles Unified's Measure US, and State Propositions 2 and 4."

San Bernardino City Unified Honors No Kid Hungry with Outstanding Community Partner Award

SAN BERNARDINO, CA--- The San Bernardino City Unified School District (SBCUSD) Board of Education is proud to announce that it has awarded the Outstanding Community Partner Award to No Kid Hungry, a nonprofit dedicated to ending childhood hunger and reducing food scarcity.

This award, presented at the Board's Oct. 22 meeting, recognizes No Kid Hungry's exceptional efforts in supporting SBCUSD's students and families with access to nutritious meals.

Through its innovative programs and partnerships, No Kid Hungry has played a critical role in ensuring that children in the San Bernardino community have access to the meals they need to thrive, both inside and outside of the classroom. Their work has significantly reduced food insecurity, helping thousands of students stay focused and succeed academically.

"The impact No Kid Hungry has had on our students and families is profound," said SBCUSD Superintendent Mauricio Arellano. "Their commitment to ending childhood hunger aligns perfectly with our mission to provide every child with the resources they need to succeed. This award is a testament to their invaluable partnership."

No Kid Hungry's initiatives have supported SBCUSD in expanding access to meals, particularly Breakfast in the Classroom. By working closely with local schools and communities, they've ensured that children receive the healthy meals they need year-round.

"We are honored to partner with SBCUSD in the fight against childhood hunger," said Daisy Munguia, Associate Director, No Kid Hungry California. "Together, we are making a tangible difference in the lives of students, ensuring that hunger is not a barrier to their education. Our partnership to bring Breakfast in the Classroom to San Bernardino City schools continues to have a significant impact on students' health, well-being, and their readiness to come to school and learn."
