Actor Geoffrey Owens Says Despite Tyler Perry's Help, He Still Struggles as a Working Actor

NATIONWIDE — Actor Geoffrey Owens, known for The Cosby Show, recently opened up about the ongoing challenges he faces as a working actor, despite receiving support and landing new roles. Owens gained media attention in 2018 after photos of him working at Trader Joe's went viral.

In a recent interview on V-103 Atlanta's Big Tigger Morning Show, Owens shared, "Even today, right now, as we speak, I still struggle to make a living. I struggle every day to make my ends meet."

Despite being seen in popular shows like CBS's Poppa's House and films like Mr. Santa, Owens said that people often misunderstand how actors earn a living.

"People have a false impression of what the average what I call 'middle-class actor' makes and their ability to make a living in the industry," he said.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports the average hourly wage for actors is $41, with a median of $20, according to Today.

After his Trader Joe's photos went viral, Owens had to quit the job due to privacy concerns. He recalled, "For two weeks or more, I was like one of the most famous people in the world. Everywhere I went, people recognized me."

This newfound fame led to new opportunities, including a role in Tyler Perry's The Haves and the Have Nots and appearances in shows like Power Book II: Ghost and Its Always Sunny in Philadelphia. Owens also received support from celebrities, including a $25,000 gift from Nicki Minaj, which he chose to donate at the time.

Despite these opportunities, Owens emphasized the continuing challenge of sustaining a career in acting. He remains grateful for the support and opportunities that have come his way.

7 Questions for Former Assemblymember Chris Holden

By Edward Henderson | California Black Media

Former Assemblymember Reggie Jones-Sawyer

In 2012, Assemblymember Chris Holden was first elected to the California State Assembly representing the 41st District in the San Gabriel Valley.

He was re-elected to that position for the following four terms.

While in office, Holden championed efforts to improve education outcomes for students and advocated for social and racial justice. Legislation he wrote or sponsored also focused on, innovation in transportation, protecting developmental disability service providers and improving public health, more broadly.

Holden, a graduate of San Diego State University, lives in Pasadena with his wife, Melanie, and children Nicholas, Alexander, Austin, Mariah and Noah. Holden is the son of former State Senator and LA City Councilmember Nate Holden.

Before he closed out his final year of service in the Assembly, California Black Media (CBM) spoke with Holden. He reflected on his accomplishments this year and his goals moving forward.

Looking back at 2024, what stands out to you as your most important achievement and why?

I'm really blessed to be at a particular point right now where I can say that a project I've been working on for well over 36 years -- the light rail system -- made its way into Pasadena from downtown LA. Now it's making its way through the San Gabriel Valley to Pomona.

We didn't have the money to complete it through from Pomona through Claremont to Montclair. We were able to get the money in this year's budget. I'm glad that I was able to be a part of the Legislature at that time, to be able to do the hard work to put those resources into place, along with my colleagues.

"Thank You Lord, Thank You Lord, Thank You Lord!"

By Lou K. Coleman | WSS News Contributor

Lou K Coleman

Blessed, to see a New Year- 2025.

Oh, bless the Lord, O my soul; And all that is within me, bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget none of His benefits. [Psalm 103:1-5]. [2 Corinthians 9:15].

The steadfast love of the Lord never ceases; His mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is [his] faithfulness. [Lamentations 3:22-23].

Lord, I just wanna praise you forever and ever for all you've done for me Lord. Blessings and glory and honor they all belong to you. Thank you, Jesus, for blessing me. [I Just Want to Praise You - Maurette Brown Clark].

I tell you; Grace gives us a lot to celebrate! It is a gift from God! It changes everything! Grace makes all things new! So, as you step into this New Year, know that God is inviting you to experience His renewal. Release the burdens of the past and walk forward with hope, knowing that His plans are good, and His mercies are new every morning. Let this year be one of transformation, renewal, and abundant faith in the God who makes all things new. Receive the new things He wants to do in your life this year. For as [Ecclesiastes 3:1] says: To everything there is a season, a time for every purpose under heaven.

The old year ends, a new begins with pages

clean and new; and what is written on each page will now depend on you. You can't relive the year that's past, erasing every wrong; For once a year - or day - is spent, it is forever gone. But don't give up in dark despair if you have failed some test; Seek God's forgiveness and resolve henceforth to do your best. Resolve each precious day to do things good and kind and pure; though days and years may pass away, these things shall still endure. You know not where your path may lead nor what's beyond the hill. But know that God walks at your side, if you will do His will. All things are possible with God, though days be bright or dim; so, do your best and know that you can leave the rest to Him. Single Black Mom Denied a Promotion, Sues PNC Bank Over Alleged Discrimination

Brandie Falice

NATIONWIDE--- Brandie Falice, who is from Atlanta, Georgia, filed a lawsuit against PNC Bank, alleging she was denied a promotion because she is a single African American mother despite her years of experience at the bank.

"I felt discouraged and I felt the time I spent with this company and my efforts to reach my goals in that space were shot down because of something that I love about myself," Falice told WSB-TV.

The lawsuit states Falice, a six-year employee aiming for a higher management role, was told she wasn't a good fit because she is Black and that most customers at the branch are white. The regional manager also said her being a single mother might affect her availability on weekends.

Falice felt this treatment undermined her worth, causing her lasting emotional distress.

"It does feel like you're judged and it feels like you're not worthy as other people," she said. "It was very disrespectful and I questioned my worth altogether because of that."

Falice, who has a Bachelor of Business Administration from Georgia State University, joined PNC in 2018. She moved up during the pandemic and had hoped to advance to a higher position at the Peachtree Corners branch after 6 years with the company.

In response, PNC Bank denied the allegations, asserting that Falice was treated fairly and in line with their company policies.

"We believe Ms. Falice was treated fairly and consistent with our company values, policies and practices," it said in a statement. "PNC does not tolerate discrimination or retaliation and we look forward to presenting the facts in court."

Falice's lawyer, Artur Davis, is calling for PNC to take responsibility for the alleged bias, pointing out how many women of color might face similar challenges.

Falice has left PNC in April 2024, according to her LinkedIn profile. She is now working as a senior account executive at an IT company in Atlanta.

Jamie Foxx Seeks Legal Action Against Person Who Threw Glass at His Face

NATIONWIDE — Jamie Foxx is pursuing legal action after an alleged assault at Mr. Chow's in Beverly Hills, where a glass was thrown at his face, injuring his mouth. Foxx is determined to have the person responsible prosecuted to prevent future incidents. No arrests have been made yet, but actor and rapper Jasper Dolphin, known for the 2022 movie Jackass Forever, is reportedly being investigated by authorities in connection with the incident, according to TMZ. The incident occurred when Foxx was celebrating his 57th birthday with his daughters and friends. A prankster projected a vulgar image onto his table using a laser pointer. The stunt, allegedly organized by the Jackass crew, angered Foxx, leading him to confront the individuals involved. The situation escalated when someone threw a glass at him, causing a cut to his mouth. The investigation is ongoing, with Foxx fully cooperating. Police are reviewing footage from the restaurant and interviewing witnesses, though they have not shared details about the footage. Neither Foxx's legal team nor Dolphin has commented on the ongoing investigation.

7 Questions for Sacramento's New Mayor Kevin McCarty

By Edward Henderson | California Black Media

Sacramento's New Mayor Kevin McCarty

In November, former California Assembly member Kevin McCarty was elected Mayor of Sacramento. He was sworn into this new role on December 10. Before becoming Mayor, McCarty represented the 6th Assembly District for 10 years. This district includes most of Sacramento and parts of Sacramento County. During his time in the Assembly, McCarty authored over 90 measures that became law including the Universal Preschool Act, the American River Parkway Conservancy Act, Independent Investigations in Police Shootings, among others. McCarty and his wife Leticia have twin daughters, Victoria and Barbara. California Black Media (CBM) spoke with McCarty as he concludes his term in the Legislature to reflect on his accomplishments this year as he enters his new role as Mayor. Looking back at 2024, what stands out to you as your most important achievement and why? I had a bill that was an urgency measure that was signed in June. It creates a new class for high school students to learn about financial literacy; to learn about dollars and cents and what it means to be a young person today as far as credit cards, student debt, buying a house and all the things that come that come with being an adult. I'm excited that my bill became law. How did your leadership and investments contribute to improving the lives of Black Californians? Black Californians are certainly a part of my legislative agenda. My Assembly district was very similar to California, way less than 10% Black population. But the issue is that education and health care and housing and poverty loom large — how they impact Black Californians.

Former Assemblymember Reggie Jones-Sawyer

recruiting process for law enforcement by raising the age limit to 21 and introducing new college curriculum requirements for cadets.

He also worked to improve living standards for socially and economically disadvantaged communities.

California Black Media (CBM) spoke with Jones-Sawyer as he concluded his term. He reflected on his accomplishments this year and shared his goals moving forward.

Looking back at 2024, what stands out to you as your most important achievement and why?

The things we did on reparations because it is the beginning of reversing the river of racism that's been permeating our community. And if we're successful at over 100 recommendations, we will have generational success that will go well beyond what people are expecting now and into the lives of your children, your grandchildren, your great-great-grandchildren, and so forth. I think the first step is the apology -- the letter that formally says that California is extremely sorry for what they did and how they were complicit in perpetuating a lot of the same policies and procedures that were perpetrated against African Americans in slave states, even though we were officially not a slave state, we still apprehended escaped slaves.

Richard Parsons Has Passed Away

Throughout his career, Parsons held significant roles. At Time Warner, he stabilized the company and restored its reputation after its troubled merger with AOL. As Citigroup's chairman in 2009, he helped the bank recover from the subprime mortgage crisis, steering it back to profitability.

Parsons, a Brooklyn native, began college at 16 and later earned a law degree. He played basketball at the University of Hawaii and worked for political leaders like Nelson Rockefeller and Gerald Ford.

In 2014, Parsons briefly served as interim CEO of the Los Angeles Clippers. He also held board positions at Estée Lauder, the Smithsonian, and the Apollo Theater. Beyond his corporate achievements, Parsons, who is a passionate jazz enthusiast, co-owned a Harlem jazz club and supported cultural institutions throughout his life.

"Dick Parsons was a brilliant and transformational leader and a giant of the media industry who led with integrity and never shied away from a challenge," NBA Commissioner Adam Silver said.

Parsons was diagnosed with multiple myeloma in 2015 and had to reduce his work commitments in recent years due to health complications. Parsons retired from several high-profile roles, including his positions at Lazard and Estée Lauder, in December 2023.

Parsons is survived by his wife, Laura, and their family.

tions for felony domestic violence survivors, advocating for the rights of foster youth, preserving endangered open spaces, and championing the restoration of voting rights for individuals on parole.

Shay has spent the last 14 years serving on many local, county and state boards, political action committees and commissions, centered on criminal justice, LGBTQ and reproductive rights, gender-based violence and environmental protections.

California Black Media (CBM) spoke with Franco-Clausen about her successes, frustrations and future plans heading into 2025.

Looking back at 2024, what stands out to you as your most important achievement and why?

In the role that I sit in as the political director for Equality California, we endorsed 216 candidates. I think the one achievement after this election that I'm proud of is that we overturned Prop 8 to protect same-sex marriages here because they're about to attack our rights on the federal level, come 2025.

I'm glad at least we changed our California constitution to reflect and protect my marriage.

important achievement and why?

Making the voice of micro and mini-micro businesses loud, forcing policymakers and other decisionmakers across the state to start paying attention to them. With legislation in place now -- AB 1574 and AB 2019 - that mandates that the state and agencies affiliated with the state extend opportunities to micro and mini business owners and give them a chance to participate in government contracting in a real way.
